

Dophins

By Abby

A dolphin is a mammal that has a blowhole. They have a tiny ear for the other dolphins to hear the dolphin call to them. Dolphins feel smooth and the color of it is gray. It is 12 feet long.

There are different kinds of dolphins. They are the Bottlenose Dolphin and the Spotted Dolphin.

Dolphins live in the oceans all over the world. They live in salt water and the sea too. They live in groups.

Dolphins are carnivores that means they eat meat. Bottlenose dolphins are hunters who find their prey at the surface of the water. They eat mostly fish and squid.

Bibliography

<http://www.EnchantedLearning.com/subjects/whales/activities/whaletemplates/Bottledolphintemplate.shtml>

<http://www.EnchantedLearning.com/subjects/whales/activities/whaletemplates/Bottledolphintemplate.shtml>

Lauber, Patricia. The Friendly Dolphins.
Random House, 1963.